Is There A God?

We can't prove God exists in a scientific sense. However, many things can't be proved scientifically and they are still true.

There's a sense in which humanity has simply accepted that there is a God, or gods. Historically humans have always had a belief in a greater Being as part of their culture.

The Bible doesn't try to prove God's existence. It takes that as a 'given'. What the Bible is concerned to do is to reveal what God is like - how he acts towards the world and people, what sort of character he has, what sort of plans he is committed to.

Pointers to God

There are factors that point to the existence of God. Different people put more importance on some of these factors than on others. Some of the arguments used to show God's existence are:

- There is a universal spiritual awareness in humanity, which indicates there is likely to be a Being on whom humans depend, and who they are accountable to
- The existence of the world demonstrates there is a supreme being who created it
- The wonder, beauty, diversity, intricacy and complexity of the world points to the existence of an intelligence who designed it all
- Human cultures all have a moral component, laws of right and wrong by which they seek to live and to which they hold individuals accountable. This indicates a greater moral Being who is the foundation of these underlying moral values
- Human intelligence, creativity, imagination and relational qualities indicate a higher being who is the author of these qualities
- Jesus himself cannot be explained apart from God's presence and action
- Some people claim it is impossible to really live out the belief that there is no God

In the end, it is a personal God, revealed in the Bible and in the life, death and resurrection of Jesus who reveals himself to those who seek him. It is a matter of faith and personal relationship with God, gained for us by Jesus.

This Morning's Sermon:

Are You Afraid?

Kevin Harrington

This Evening's Sermon:

Small But Mighty

Kevin Harrington

If The Earth Were...

- If the earth were as small as the moon, the power of gravity would be too weak to retain sufficient atmosphere for man's needs; but if it were as large as Jupiter, Saturn, or Uranus, extreme gravitation would make human movement almost impossible.
- If we were as near to the sun as Venus, the heat would be unbearable; if we were as far away as Mars, we would experience snow and ice every night even in the warmest regions. If the oceans were half their present dimensions, we would receive only one-fourth the rainfall we do now. If they were one-eighth larger, our annual precipitation would increase fourfold, and this earth would become a vast, uninhabitable swamp!
- Water solidifies at 32 degrees above zero. It would be disastrous if the oceans were subject to that law, however, for then the amount of thawing in the polar regions would not balance out, and ice would accumulate throughout the centuries! To prevent such a catastrophe, the Lord put salt in the sea to alter its freezing point! Psalm 104:24:

O Lord, how many are Your works! In wisdom You have made them all; The earth is full of Your possessions.
